Preached In Her Bare Feet.

Miss Minnie Johnson, who was arrested at Lexington twice during the past week for preaching on the streets in her bare feet, was arraigned before County Judge Bullock, Friday morning, and was ordered to the asylum. Col. J. G. Craddock, of Paris, has endowed a room in the hospital at the Confederate Home with the pension money he received as a veteran of the Mexican War. He is one of the few men now living who fought in both the Mexican and Civil Wars, and is one of the best known men in Central Kentucky. The room is to be known as the "Col. J. G. Craddock Room."

Gas Struck Near Paris.

The people of this city have reasons to be enthusiastic over the news that a strong flow of natural gas was struck Saturday afternoon on the farm of William Meteer, at Hutchison Station, seven miles South of here. Mr. Meteer was drilling for water, and at a depth of seventy-five feet struck a limestone rock twenty feet in thickness. When the drill pierced this there was a loud report and the drill shot high in the air. A negro man engaged at the work detected the smell of gas and lighted a match some distance from the hole. A flame shot several feet high and he narrowly escaped with his life. His clothing was almost burned from his body and he received severe burns. The jet of gas also caught fire, the blaze leaping high into the air and threatening Mr. Meteer's residence, which is only a short distance away.

The drilling force, reinforced by neighbors, worked for hours piling earth about the mouth of the well. After much work an inch gas pipe was placed and secured in the mouth of the well. After this was accomplished the blaze might have been extinguished, but Mr. Meteer feared that the gas would accumulate in the lowlands in which his house and the well are located and a disastrous explosion might result. On this account the gas was allowed to burn, the blaze rising many feet into the air and illuminating the surrounding country all of Saturday night and is still burning at this writing. At first the blaze was as large as a hoghead, but after the pipe was secured it was reduced to a diameter of a few inches.

This is the first time that gas has ever been struck in Bourbon county, and it cannot now be determined in what quantities the gas exists, or whether it can ever be utilized for practical purposes, but one thing is sure, if a great gas reservoir underlies the county it means much, not only to Paris, but to the whole Bluegrass region.

Adelaide Thurston Coming.

Miss Adelaide Thurston, whose indisputable beauty and talents have gained for her a place among the foremost of stage favorites, is announced to appear here the 25th inst. in her comedy "Polly Primrose." The equally welcome announcement that Mr. and Mrs. James R. McCann and their charming niece, Miss Pearl Hammond, all of this place, are to appear in important roles in "Polly Primrose," ought to be enough to insure a large and fashionable gathering. Mr. and Mrs. James R. McCann and Miss Hammond have been with Miss Thurston for two seasons and they have written letters to friends and relatives here lauding the dainty and sweet personality of their star, and the artistic qualities of "Polly Primrose." The comedy was written for the display of Miss Thurston's charms by Paul Wiltach, press representative of the famous actor, Richard Mansfield. The announcement of Miss Thurston's coming should start the formation of many theatre parties. The attraction in itself, without the interest that is attached to the appearance of Paris folks in the cast, will be classed among the most important of the season's offerings.

Being Rock-Ballasted.

The breaking of an axle on one of the cars of the Paris interurban line delayed traffic from 4:30 till 6 o'clock Friday. A car which was being used for hauling ballast suffered a broken axle, which obstructed the track so that the 6 o'clock car could not get out of Lexington. The trouble was soon remedied, and the traffic was unimpeded.

The track of the interurban company is being rock-ballasted from Paris to Lexington, and the work has been completed from Paris to Elmdorf. Work is being pushed every day, and the distance between J. B. Haggin's place and Lexington will soon be covered. The rock is procured from the quarry belonging to the company, near the sub-station. A line of track has been run to the quarry, and the cars have no difficulty in being loaded.

BOTH 'PHONES—DAY 137; NIGHT 299.

A HORRIBLE CRIME.

Husband, Wife, Daughter and Son Shot and Killed.

A Son is the Only Member of the Family Alive and Says He Thinks the Motive Was Neither Robbery Nor Revenge.

Auburn, Cal., Nov. 12.—It is now known that Julius Weber, 48, his wife, 41, their 19-year-old daughter Bertha, and their son Paul, 14, were murdered Thursday night by an unknown assassin, who set fire to the home in an effort to cover his crime. Before the fire had made any great headway the bodies of the murdered woman and her two children were rescued from the burning house.

An examination of the bodies showed that Mrs. Weber and the children had been murdered before the fire had been started. The daughter had been killed by a pistol wound, as had been Mrs. Weber. On the boy's head were several deep cuts. He had also been shot.

All efforts to reach Julius Weber, the father, who was not thought to be in the burning house, was abandoned until Friday, when a search was made in the burned timbers and his body was found in the bathroom of the dwelling. He, too, had been shot down before being left to be consumed by the flames.

The body of Mr. Weber was so badly burned that it has been impossible to ascertain how often he was shot.

One very peculiar circumstance of the tragedy is that while the bodies of the mother and daughter were burned to some extent the apartment in which they were lying was not on fire when the firemen broke in, which showed that they had been killed in some other portion of the house, partly burned and then dragged into the room where they were found.

Coroner Shepard, Sheriff Kean and District Attorney Robinson are making a thorough investigation of the tragedy. They are advancing no theories, but the facts would indicate that the murders was the work of a madman or cool, calculating, premeditated crime.

The robbery theory is about exploded, as no incentive has been found. Adolph Weber, the son, aged 20, who is the only member of the family alive, talks but little, but to the coroner and sheriff he says he didn't think the motive was either robbery or revenge. When asked if he had a theory, he said he had, but would not give it. He did say, reluctantly, that his father had a violent temper. The boy said he left the house about 6:30 and came down town, purchased a pair of trousers, and did several other errands. When he went to the fire he dropped his old trousers, which were in a bundle, in the burning building. He is now at the home of Deputy County Treasurer John Adams. Young Weber has a good reputation. Two 22-caliber revolvers were found, but the bullets extracted from the body were of 32 caliber. The officers are looking for the pistol from which they were fired.

The autopsy Friday night on the body of Mr. Weber disclosed a bullet wound through the heart. The diameter of the wound was the same as that in the bodies of Mrs. Weber and Miss Weber, who were shot with a 32-caliber weapon.

Julius Weber was a retired brewer and was possessed of considerable wealth. The family lived in a handsome home here, and Mr. Weber possessed valuable property in Oakland, Cal.

WOULDN'T YOU?

Wouldn't you like to go to-day and
browse
On a hillside slope where the winds ca-
rouse
In an elfin dance with the daisies tall,
And the larks sing loud, and the thrushes
call,
And the peach and apple blossoms float
Like each was an opal tinted boat,
With a fairy helmsman, drove along
On an airy fairy stream of song?

And you'd almost catch the elfin hall,
And an almost glimpse of the elfin sail,
And, where you dreamed 'neath the apple
tree,
The waves would run of an inland sea,
Each wave's crest white with the mar-
garites,
And, for where the sea and the headland
meets,
Just an old gray wall where the shadows
fall,
And a maid and a lover might come and
sit.

Heigh-o! but I know of a place, I do,
For all of the world like that, don't you?
The wall is of square-hewn stones, and
grows
With a century's moss, and I carved my
own
And another's name on its face one day,
When she and I in our childish play
Had climbed the hill and had wandered
there;
My barefoot sweetheart young and fair.

Heigh-o! I do—I know of the place
Where the grassy sea's green billows
meow,
And I know the place where with rock
and nail
I carved our names; and the blossoms
fall
In the game old way; but the barefoot
maid
With the sky blue eyes who stood half
afraid
By my side is gone, and I'm old and lone,
And as gray and worn as the lichened
stone.

KING OF THE SEA

CHAPTER II.—CONTINUED.

Meanwhile old Jabez had been steering the brig with consummate seamanship. With every appearance of endeavoring to hold her close to the wind, he had skillfully allowed her to fall off, little by little, until she was quite perceptibly to leeward of the French ship. Grafton judged that now or never things were opportune for his daring attempt.

"Send the men to the starboard battery, Mr. Stanhope," he said quietly, as he realized that he had approached the supreme moment, and it was about time to try his coup, or give over the attempt and give up the ship. "Get the stuns'ls ready for setting and see that the gear is all clear. I want smart work from the sail-trimmers, now! Slooow, stand by that helm and mind the orders! Bid the men train their guns aft, Stanhope, and fire when I give the word. Now, then! Up with the helm! Over with it! Hard-a-weather! Tend the after-braces! Hands ready! Round in forward, flatten in the head-sheets! So! Stand by with the starboard battery! Now! Fire! Let her have it, men! Sway away with those stuns'ls! Steady with the helm! Quick, for God's sake! Well done, all!"

Once more the eight six-pounders barked out. In a cloud of her own smoke the Boxer rounded on her heel again, bringing the wind aft again, darted away at right angles to her former course. Covered with stuns'ls aloft and aloft, she leaped along at a great pace, gaining distance with every moment. Were they to succeed in escaping?

But the captain of the liner had foreseen the skillful endeavor. A less able seaman might have attempted to emulate the Englishman's motions and followed on the brig's heels; a less thoughtful commander would not have been ready for the only move which would have stopped the daring maneuver. With proper judgment, he chose to crush the audacious Englishman with his mighty battery.

In spite of the promptness with which Grafton's order had been carried out, the advantage gained thereby, the brig was still within easy range of all but the lightest guns of the French ship. Since the weather was mild, it permitted the lower deck ports to be opened and her heaviest guns to be used. As the Boxer presented her stern to her huge antagonist, the latter was suddenly wreathed with fire and smoke. The thunderous roar of her discharge could have been heard for miles. Her captain took no chance, every gun that bore was discharged at the doomed vessel.

A tempest of iron came hurtling aboard the brig. She was like an egg-shell under a trip-hammer. From a trim and saucy little vessel she was reduced in the twinkling of an eye to a wreck. The main-mast was carried away a few feet above the deck, the foretop-mast was hanging up, and down the foremast, nearly every shroud and stay had been parted. The stern of the brig had been beaten in. Her boats were cut to pieces, and the decks were filled with dead and wounded, poor Stanhope among the former—a round shot had taken off his head. Old Jabez, unhurt, still clasped the wheel. The foremast, though almost cut to ribbons, still held a little wind, and the brig wallowed slowly ahead through the water.

"Good God!" exclaimed Grafton, who had come off scatheless, dazed at the failure of his effort and the deadly price he had paid so fruitlessly, "how horrible!"

It had been a gallant attempt. Indeed, the only possibility of escape had been that he had tried. It had failed owing to the preparedness and good judgment of the French captain. There were not ten sailors in France who could have done so well as he. With almost any one else opposing him, Grafton might have escaped. But now his brig was a wreck beneath him. There was nothing left for him but to surrender. Throwing his weighted bag of dispatches overboard, he drew a handkerchief from his pocket and waved it toward his enemy.

Seeing the hopeless and helpless condition of her quarry, the French ship of the line swept gracefully up into the wind by the side of the broken brig. Her way was checked, her ponderous yards swung, and she moved to a short distance off. A magnificent picture she presented, with her frowning tiers of guns, her lofty pyramids of sails, her decks crowded with brilliantly uniformed officers.

The French could plainly see that there was no boat left on the Boxer; therefore, in a few moments, a heavy cutter was swung from the davits of the liner and lowered into the water. Presently an officer, attended by a surgeon and a surgeon's mate, stepped on the deck of the brig.

"You speak French, monsieur?" asked the officer of Grafton, who stood in the gangway to receive him.

"Yes, sir," answered the American, bowing.

"And you are—?"

"Lieut. Philip Grafton, commanding his Britannic majesty's late brig Boxer. And you are—?"

"Lieut. St. Andre du Verger, of his most christian majesty's ship-of-the-line Le Thesee, commanded by M. le Comte de Kersaint de Kerguelen."

"I am at your service, monsieur. The fortune of war has made me your prisoner."

"M. de Kersaint desires that you repair on board his ship at once, monsieur."

"Willingly, M. du Verger," said Grafton, striving gallantly to hide his sadness at this bitter ending of his cruise. "At your orders. Will you see to the poor fellows I leave here?"

"With pleasure, M. le Capitaine. I have brought a surgeon and a surgeon's mate for the purpose."

CHAPTER III.

ENEMIES ARE FRIENDS.

HE change from the broken and shattered brig to the spacious and magnificent ship of the line was startling.

The latter was a brand-new ship fresh from the ways. Every improvement which the most skilled naval architects and ship-builders of the day

could devise—and France easily led all nations in the fine art of naval construction at that time—had been lavished upon Le Thesee. The practical ability of the designers, exhibited in many novel and useful contrivances, had been re-enforced and not obscured by a lavish display of polished metal work, ornamental fittings and wood-carving, which would have better suited a royal yacht than a vessel of war.

As Grafton came through the gangway he was met by an officer and conducted aft to the high poop deck, upon which a brilliant group of officers were collected about a tall, splendid-looking man in the prime of life, who was evidently the commander of the ship. Grafton stepped toward him, bowed gracefully, and then, extending his sword, remarked in excellent French, of which he was luckily a thorough master:

"The fortune of war, monsieur, has made my small vessel the prize of your magnificent ship."

"You are a bold man, young sir, and in many instances—perhaps most—your gallant attempt to escape by running off before the wind would have been successful," returned the French captain, magnanimously. Then, touching the hilt of the young American's sword, he added graciously, bowing in his turn: "Retain your sword, monsieur, I should be loath indeed to deprive so brave a man of the weapon which he has shown he knows how to wear so worthily. Sang diou!" he added, relapsing into the patois of his native province, "twas an impudent thing, sir, to slap us in the face like that when we first caught sight of you, and then try to run for it! But there are few keels laid down that Le Thesee cannot overhaul, I think. Hey, messieurs!" he questioned, turning to his officers, his remark being received with acclamations of assent.

"Young sir," he continued, addressing

Grafton once more, "will you give me the name of your brig?"

"H. B. M. brig Boxer—at least she was this morning. She is yours now, monsieur."

"Where from and whither bound, monsieur?"

"From Gibraltar to Portsmouth."

"On what errand?"

"With dispatches, sir."

"Where are they?"

"Overboard and sunk, sir."

"Ha! And what of the fleet of Monsieur Boscawen?"

"I can tell you nothing of that, sir."

"Nor as to the contents of the dispatches?"

"Certainly not, sir!"

"Humph! Your name, young sir, and rank."

"Philip Grafton, monsieur, a lieutenant in H. B. M. navy, lately First of the Torbay, ship of the line, and more recently commanding the Boxer."

"Grafton!" exclaimed the other, surprised, "are you an Englishman?"

"No, monsieur," answered the young officer promptly and proudly, "I am an American. I was born in Massachusetts."

"And you are the son of—?"

"Admiral John Grafton, monsieur, who commanded the colonial armed ship Shirley."

"At the siege of Louisbourg in 1745?"

"The same, sir."

"Did your father ever tell you of the engagement he and one or two other private armed ships had with a French frigate seeking to enter the harbor?"

"La Renomme!" interrupted Grafton in great surprise at the other's knowledge.

"Certainly, monsieur, often. 'Twas that fight, indeed, that won his king's approval and gained him the commission which was in turn passed on to me."

"My faith, sir!" exclaimed the French captain, smiling, "'twas a hot fight indeed! I never have seen a better. He well deserved the commission he won. No wonder that you did not quail before a ship of the line, young man! You have in you the mettle of your father."

"Did you know my father, sir?" asked Grafton, in great surprise.

"I have heard him speak from the iron throats of his guns, sir."

"Then you are—?"

"I was the captain of La Renomme."

"And your name is—?"

"Guy de Caetnampreu, Comte de Kersaint de Kerguelen, Capitaine de Vaisseau of His Most Christian Majesty Louis XV., whom God protect, and very much at your service, monsieur. Here is no case of prisoner and enemy, gentlemen. The father fought me, I befriend the son. Is it not just, messieurs?" asked Kersaint, turning to his officers once more.

It was Grafton who answered: "Tis more than justice, Monsieur le Comte, 'tis kindness, indeed!"

"N'importe, monsieur; I would that I could give you back your ship, but that, of course, is impossible. Nevertheless, your captivity shall be made as light as possible. We are bound in for Brest, and this gentleman here," indicating an old man in rich civilian dress, who had surveyed the scene with interest, "is my most noble kinsman, the Marquis de Chabot-Rohan. He will, I am sure, as my prospective sailing thence in a few days debars me from keeping you with me or extending you the hospitality of my poor house, take you into his own chateau until you are exchanged. 'Twill be a pleasant prison, sir, and there grows a wild Breton rose within the walls. Is it not so, Monsieur le Comte?"

"As to the rose, I cannot say. Monsieur Grafton may find it thorny; but as to receiving him, certainly, de Kersaint," responded the old man just addressed by the captain. "I have a soft spot in my heart for Americans, as you know, since my only son honored himself by marrying a daughter of Virginia—a land of brave men, messieurs, and fair women. Helas!"

"Monsieur le Marquis," quickly answered Grafton, who had not spent some years of his life at court for nothing, "I thank you for your hospitality and I congratulate you upon the source from which it flows. I accept it gladly—roses and thorns as well."

"Monsieur, you honor me by your acceptance. As to the rose, Monsieur de Kersaint speaks with the romantic license of Brittany. 'Tis but a child, monsieur, my little grand-daughter. I am the thorns—a dull old set, surely," added the old man, smiling rather grimly.

"Faith, de Chabot, he who would fain pluck your rose will find you sharp enough, I'll warrant. Morbleu, you haven't forgot that parry and return you taught me when I was a boy and you a young soldier. Ah, messieurs, if any of you seek speedy gentle death you may easily find it before the marquis' point—"

"Gentlemen," smiled the old man, "here is no thought of death, but the tale of a little girl. Monsieur Grafton—"

"There are roses in England and America, Monsieur le Marquis—ay, and thorns, too. And no true man was ever deterred from wearing one for fear of the other. But, mistake me not, I'll not seek to pluck your Breton flower," replied the American, entering into the spirit of the jest. "I shall be your prisoner and—"

"Say my guest, monsieur. But enough," said the old marquis, frowning slightly. "As to the rose, we have carried the pleasantry too far already, messieurs. Let us have no more of it. Monsieur Grafton, direct your private baggage to be brought to the ship here; we will leave for my chateau on our arrival this evening."

"Monsieur de Kersaint," said Grafton, "will you be so kind as to oblige me under which you have laid me, by giving orders that my poor men, the wounded, I mean, are to be well cared for, and then have my private baggage sent off to the Thesee!"

My steward, who is aboard the Boxer, will attend to it."

"Your men shall be attended to as if they belonged to me," responded the French captain, graciously, "and your private belongings secured. Meanwhile, will you step into my cabin that we may discuss further our common interests and friendships? Monsieur St. Laurent," he added, turning to his executive officer, who held the rank of capitaine de frigate, "will you throw a prize crew on the doughty little Boxer—a hard hitter, indeed—and bid her follow us into Brest under a jury-rig when she can. On second thought, monsieur, lie by her for a few hours until she is fit to go ahead. We would better convey her in. I should not like to lose her for all she is but a small prize."

CHAPTER IV.

THE GARDEN AND THE ROSE.

THE Chateau de Josselin, a place not unknown to history, lay hard by the seashore a few miles from the town of Brest toward which it turned its landward side. It was a building of great antiquity and had been in the possession of the family of de Rohan from feudal times. One face looked seaward over the wild crags, where the stormy waves of the Bay of Biscay broke in ceaseless onslaught, beating themselves into the white foam of sea agony upon the stern shores.

At the foot of the keep or principal tower, which was built upon the sheer edge of a precipitous headland, there was a deep indentation in the cliffs, which, if one possessed sufficient skill and knowledge to thread the narrow passage twisting between the roaring breakers, afforded a safe harborage for boats and small coasting vessels. It had been long unused, of course, owing to the spacious harbor of Brest close at hand, but in old days it had been a favored haven of the adventurous lords of Rohan—and sometimes of their enemies as well.

Landward the main chateau overlooked a singularly pleasant garden filled with ancient fruit and shade trees, the whole inclosed by a high wall from which, and better still from the high tower, a full view of Brest, its fortifications, its naval station, its harbor and its shipping could be obtained. It was to this castle that Philip Grafton was conducted upon the evening of the arrival of Le Thesee in the harbor.

The Marquis de Chabot-Rohan, or, to give him his familiar title, de Chabot, the heir and successor to the dignities of the de Rohans in those parts, and consequently the master of rich and extensive possessions, kept up a princely estate in the old chateau, and it pleased him still to perpetuate the ancient usages and customs of his house so far as he could. The castle itself seemed to be maintained as a mediaeval fortress might have been. The ditch surrounding it on the landward side, instead of being dry and grass-grown, as was the custom, was kept well filled with water; the drawbridge—the sole means of crossing the moat—was raised and lowered at appointed hours; and close watch and ward were kept by the feudal retainers of the house at the gateway and on the walls. To seaward the walls were so high and so strong that the castle, placed on the very edge of the beetling cliffs, was believed to be impregnable.

Fatal Oversight.

"Young Watkins and his bride have already quarreled," remarked the society reporter, "although they have only been married two weeks."

"What's the trouble?" asked the sporting editor.

"It seems," explained the pencil shaver, "that the wedding presents were at the bottom of it. He wanted to take two or three of them to his office, and she objected."

"Serves 'em right," growled the sporting editor. "They should have signed an agreement as to the division of the gate receipts before the match was pulled off."—Chicago Daily News.

Significant Comparison.

Leonard Bacon, who was one of the best-known theologians in New England a quarter of a century ago, was attending a conference in one of the New England cities, and some assertions he made in his address were vehemently objected to by a member of the opposition. "Why," he expostulated, "I never heard of such a thing in all my life!" "Mr. Moderator," rejoined Bacon, calmly, "I cannot allow my opponent's ignorance, however vast, to offset my knowledge, however small."

Not to Be Greedy.

A teacher in a private class in a West Philadelphia school was explaining the petition in the Lord's Prayer: "We ask for our daily bread," she said, "to teach us that we are not to be greedy, but only prudent in providing for our wants, and that we are to have great confidence in the providence of God." After she was through she asked one boy why he did not say, "Give us this month our bread." To her astonishment he quickly replied: "Because it would get stale and moldy."

Court Mourning Dogs.

Fifty years ago the British minister at Dresden, Mr. Forbes, had three little dogs of the Pomeranian breed, one black, one gray and one white. When the court was in mourning he went out with dog No. 1, when it was in half-mourning with dog No. 2 and when all was going well with dog No. 3.

Full of Feeling.

On Sunday morning the bishop of Southwell, England, began his sermon with these words: "I feel a feeling which I feel you will feel."

GROCERY MAN AND COOK.

Exchange Left-Handed Compliments and Come Out About Even.

"Better let me bring you a nice egg-plant this mornin'," said the grocery man to the pretty cook, according to the Chicago Daily News. "Then you can make your own eggs, Evelina. What do you do with 'em all?"

"Batter cakes, sweet cakes, custards an' omelettes mostly," replied the cook.

"Don't you ever make eggnog?"

"I don't know what it is," declared the cook. "I've heard tell of it, but I couldn't say whether it was baked or fried."

"It ain't neither," said the grocery man. "It's billed. If you go to fry a eggnog you spoil it. I'd sooner eat it raw. Where was you Thursday night?"

"Stayed in an' sewed buttonholes on my dishcloths," said the pretty cook.

"What was that for?"

"To make 'em look pretty—same reason you've got your mustach curled. I think a man looks well curlin' up his mustach with curlin' tongs—like a girl."

"I never seen a girl curl her mustach myself," said the grocery man. "I wasn't to blame for this, though. It was the barber. He got me tied in the chair so I couldn't move an' gagged me so I couldn't holler an' then got out his irons an' done the job. I didn't want him to do it."

"I s'pose not," said the pretty cook. "Sure thing I didn't. I knowed I was beautiful the way I was. My natural looks make me enough trouble with the girls."

"I don't think they ought to blame you for 'em," said the cook. "You can't help your face. I had an uncle once that looked something like you—not quite as bad, maybe—but he was sensitive about it all the same, which you ain't."

"He ought to have had his face amputated if it was as bad as that," observed the grocery man. "Or he might have gone to one of these face foundries an' had it recast. I knew a feller once they called Nosey, an' he saved his money an' went to a professor an' got his beak trimmed down so he didn't hardly have enough left to smell fried onions. Then they got to callin' him Pug, an' he went back to the professor an' wanted to know if he had any of the old material left to put back again. The professor done the best he could an' the job looked all right, but Nosey died of heart failure less'n a month after that. He was scared to death for fear somethin' would make him sneeze."

"You'd better see one o' them professors," observed the pretty cook.

"Why would I?" asked the grocery man. "My nose is all right as far as it goes an' it goes as far as I want to follow it."

"Your nose may be all right."

"I guess it is," said the grocery man, indignantly. "How about my hair?"

"I don't like 'red myself," said the cook, "but the color's good enough for them as likes it. It's your lip I object to."

Disenchanted Don.

A novel illustration of the saying: "Listeners never hear any good of themselves," comes from the London Tatler. An Oxford don, more highly esteemed for intellectual activity than modesty, was asked to speak into a phonograph. A little later the machine was turned on again, and he was requested to listen to his own voice. He listened in silence, then turned to the company. "It is very strange!" he said, in a tone of mingled surprise and resentment. "I can't understand it, but through this machine I am made to speak in a peculiarly bumptious and affected manner!"

GIRL AND WOMAN

CARE NEEDED AT THE CHANGE FROM ONE TO THE OTHER.

Many a Life Spent in Suffering Because Troubles Were Allowed to Develop At This Time.

Every mother of a growing girl should remember that there will come a time when her daughter will be a girl no longer but will share with her the blessings of womanhood. Unless nourishment keeps pace with growth the foundations of a life of suffering are laid at that time. Mrs. John McKinney, of No. 478 Thirteenth street, Detroit, Mich., writes a timely word. She says:

"I did not get proper care at the first critical time in my life and for seventeen years I suffered as a result. I had dizzy spells, felt a constant fear that something dreadful was about to happen and was afraid to go out alone. My breathing was very short and I had palpitation of the heart so badly that I could not go up stairs nor walk even moderately fast. I was so nervous that I could not sit still. At different times for years I was under the care of the best physicians in Detroit and I tried a number of advertised medicines. Nothing helped me until, on the advice of a neighbor, I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I felt relieved before the first box was finished and I kept on taking them until I was cured."

"Last winter my little girl had rheumatism and I gave her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and she got well right away. My niece was thought to be going into consumption and, upon my advice, she tried the pills. They cured her cough and she is now well and strong. My entire family are enthusiastic over Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and we cannot say enough in their praise."

These pills effect such cures because they go to the root of the disease. Other remedies act on the symptoms—these marvelous vegetable pills remove the cause of the trouble. They have proved themselves to be an unfailing specific for all diseases arising from impure blood and weakened nerves—two fruitful causes of nearly all the ills to which humankind is heir. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold in boxes at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct from Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

WOULDN'T YOU?

Wouldn't you like to go to-day and
browse
On a hillside slope where the winds ca-
rouse
In an elfin dance with the daisies tall,
And the larks sing loud, and the thrushes
call,
And the peach and apple blossoms float
Like each was an opal tinted boat,
With a fairy helmsman, drove along
On an airy fairy stream of song?

And you'd almost catch the elfin hall,
And an almost glimpse of the elfin sail,
And, where you dreamed 'neath the apple
tree,
The waves would run of an inland sea,
Each wave's crest white with the mar-
garites,
And, far where the sea and the headland
meets,
Just an old gray wall where the shadows
sit,
And a maid and a lover might come and
sit.

Heigh-o! but I know of a place, I do,
For all of the world like that, don't you?
The wall is of square-hewn stones, and
grows
With a century's moss, and I carved my
own
And another's name on its face one day,
When she and I in our childish play
Had climbed the hill and had wandered
there;
My barefoot sweetheart young and fair.

Heigh-o! I do—I know of the place
Where the grassy sea's green billows
swoon,
And I know the place where with rock
and nail
I carved our names; and the blossoms
sail
In the same old way; but the barefoot
maid
With the sky blue eyes who stood half
afraid
By my side is gone, and I'm old and lone,
And as gray and worn as the lichened
stone.

CHAPTER II.—CONTINUED.

Meanwhile old Jabez had been steering the brig with consummate seamans-
hip. With every appearance of endeavoring to hold her close to the wind, he had skillfully allowed her to fall off, little by little, until she was quite perceptibly to leeward of the French ship. Grafton judged that now or never things were opportune for his daring attempt.

"Send the men to the starboard battery, Mr. Stanhope," he said quietly,
as he realized that he had approached the supreme moment, and it was about time to try his coup, or give over the attempt and give up the ship. "Get the stuns'ls ready for setting and see that the gear is all clear. I want smart work from the sail-trimmers, now!
Stoom, stand by that helm and mind
the orders! Bid the men train their guns aft, Stanhope, and fire when I give the word. Now, then! Up with the helm! Over with it! Hard-a-weather! Tend the after-braces!
Hands ready! Round in forward, flatten in the head-sheets! So! Stand by with the starboard battery! Now!
Fire! Let her have it, men! Sway away with those stuns'ls! Steady with the helm! Quick, for God's sake!
Well done, all!"

Once more the eight six-pounders barked out. In a cloud of her own smoke the Boxer rounded on her heel
again, bringing the wind aft again,
darted away at right angles to her former course. Covered with stuns'ls aloft and aloft, she leaped along at a great pace, gaining distance with every moment. Were they to succeed in escaping?

But the captain of the liner had foreseen the skilful endeavor. A less able seaman might have attempted to emulate the Englishman's motions and followed on the brig's heels; a less thoughtful commander would not have been ready for the only move which would have stopped the daring maneuver. With proper judgment, he chose to crush the audacious Englishman with his mighty battery.

In spite of the promptness with which Grafton's order had been carried out, and the advantage gained thereby, the brig was still within easy
range of all but the lightest guns of the French ship. Since the weather was mild, it permitted the lower deck
ports to be opened and her heaviest guns to be used. As the Boxer presented her stern to her huge antagonist, the latter was suddenly wreathed with fire and smoke. The thunderous roar of her discharge could have been heard for miles. Her captain took no chance, every gun that bore was discharged at the doomed vessel.

A tempest of iron came hurtling
aboard the brig. She was like an eggshell under a trip-hammer. From a trim and saucy little vessel she was reduced in the twinkling of an eye to a wreck. The main-mast was carried away a few feet above the deck, the foretop-mast was hanging up and down the foremast, nearly every shroud and stay had been parted. The stern of the brig had been beaten in.
Her boats were cut to pieces, and the decks were filled with dead and wounded, poor Stanhope among the former—a round shot had taken off his head. Old Jabez, unhurt, still clashed the wheel. The foremast, though almost cut to ribbons, still held

a little wind, and the brig wallowed
slowly ahead through the water.

"Good God!" exclaimed Grafton,
who had come off scatheless, dazed at
the failure of his effort and the deadly price he had paid so fruitlessly, "how horrible!"

It had been a gallant attempt. Indeed, the only possibility of escape had been that he had tried. It had failed owing to the preparedness and good judgment of the French captain.
There were not ten sailors in France
who could have done so well as he.
With almost any one else opposing him, Grafton might have escaped. But now his brig was a wreck beneath him.
There was nothing left for him but to surrender. Throwing his weighted bag of dispatches overboard, he drew a handkerchief from his pocket and waved it toward his enemy.

Seeing the hopeless and helpless condition of her quarry, the French ship
of the line swept gracefully up into the wind by the side of the broken
brig. Her way was checked, her ponderous yards swung, and she heaved to a short distance off. A magnificent picture she presented, with her frowning
tiers of guns, her lofty pyramids of sails, her decks crowded with brilliantly uniformed officers.

The French could plainly see that there was no boat left on the Boxer;
therefore, in a few moments, a heavy cutter was swung from the davits of
the liner and lowered into the water.
Presently an officer, attended by a surgeon and a surgeon's mate, stepped on the deck of the brig.

"You speak French, monsieur?"
asked the officer of Grafton, who stood
in the gangway to receive him.

"Yes, sir," answered the American,
bowing.

"And you are—?"
"Lieut. Philip Grafton, commanding
his Britannic majesty's late brig
Boxer. And you are—?"

"Lieut. St. Andre du Verger, of his most christian majesty's ship-of-the-line Le Thesee, commanded by M. le Comte de Kersaint de Kerguelen."

"I am at your service, monsieur.
The fortune of war has made me your prisoner."

"M. de Kersaint desires that you repair on board his ship at once, monsieur."

"Willingly, M. du Verger," said Grafton, striving gallantly to hide his sadness at this bitter ending of his cruise. "At your orders. Will you see to the poor fellows I leave here?"
"With pleasure, M. le Capitaine. I have brought a surgeon and a surgeon's mate for the purpose."

a vessel of war.

As Grafton came through the gang-
way he was met by an officer and conducted aft to the high poop deck, upon which a brilliant group of officers were collected about a tall, splendid-looking man in the prime of life, who was evidently the commander of the ship.
Grafton stepped toward him, bowed graciously, and then, extending his sword, remarked in excellent French,
of which he was luckily a thorough master:

"The fortune of war, monsieur, has made my small vessel the prize of your magnificent ship."

"You are a bold man, young sir, and in many instances—perhaps most—
your gallant attempt to escape by running off before the wind would have been successful," returned the French captain, magnanimously. Then, touching the hit of the young American's sword, he added graciously, bowing in his turn: "Retain your sword, monsieur, I should be loath indeed to deprive so brave a man of the weapon
which he has shown he knows how to wear so worthily. Sang diou!" he added, relapsing into the patois of his native province, "twas an impudent
thing, sir, to slap us in the face like that when we first caught sight of you, and then try to run for it! But there are few keels laid down that Le Thesee cannot overhaul, I think.
Hey, messieurs?" he questioned, turning to his officers; his remark being received with acclamations of assent.

"Young sir," he continued, addressing Grafton once more, "will you give me
the name of your brig?"
"H. B. M. brig Boxer—at least she was his this morning. She is yours
now, monsieur."

"Where from and whither bound,
monsieur?"
"From Gibraltar to Portsmouth."
"On what errand?"
"With dispatches, sir."

"Where are they?"
"Overboard and sunk, sir."
"Ha! And what of the fleet of Monsieur Boscawen?"
"I can tell you nothing of that, sir."

"Nor as to the contents of the dispatches?"
"Certainly not, sir!"

"Humph! Your name, young sir,
and rank."

"Philip Grafton, monsieur, a lieutenant in H. B. M. navy, lately First of the Torbay, ship of the line, and more recently commanding the Boxer."

"Grafton!" exclaimed the other, surprised, "are you an Englishman?"
"No, monsieur," answered the young officer promptly and proudly, "I am an American. I was born in Massachusetts."

"And you are the son of—?"

"Admiral John Grafton, monsieur,
who commanded the colonial armed
ship Shirley."

"At the siege of Louisbourg in 1745?"
"The same, sir."

"Did your father ever tell you of the engagement he and one or two other private armed ships had with a French frigate seeking to enter the harbor?"

"La Renommee?" interrupted Grafton
in great surprise at the other's knowledge. "Certainly, monsieur, often."

"Twice that fight, indeed, that won his king's approval and gained him the commission which was in turn passed
on to me."

"My faith, sir!" exclaimed the French captain, smiling, "twas a hot fight indeed! I never have seen a better. He well deserved the commission he won. No wonder that you did not quell before a ship of the line,
young man! You have in you the mettle of your father."

"Did you know my father, sir?"
asked Grafton, in great surprise.

"I have heard him speak from the iron throats of his guns, sir."

"Then you are—?"

"I was the captain of La Renommee."

"And your name is—?"

"Guy de Caennampren, Comte de Kersaint de Kerguelen, Capitaine de Vaisseau of His Most Christian Majesty Louis XV., whom God protect,
and very much at your service, monsieur. Here is no case of prisoner and enemy, gentlemen. The father fought me, I befriended the son. Is it not just, messieurs?" asked Kersaint, turning
to his officers once more.

It was Grafton who answered:

"Tis more than justice, Monsieur
le Comte, 'tis kindness, indeed!"

"N'importe, monsieur; I would that I could give you back your ship, but that, of course, is impossible. Nevertheless, your captivity shall be made as light as possible. We are bound in for Brest, and this gentleman here,"

indicating an old man in rich civilian
dress, who had surveyed the scene
with interest, "is my most noble kinsman, the Marquis de Chabot-Rohan. He will, I am sure, as my prospective
sailing tinee in a few days debar me
from keeping you with me or extending you the hospitality of my poor
house, take you into his own chateau
until you are exchanged. 'Twill be a pleasant prison, sir, and there grows a wild Breton rose within the walls. Is it not so, Monsieur le Comte?"

"As to the rose, I cannot say. Monsieur Grafton may find it thorny; but
as to receiving him, certainly, de Ker-saint," responded the old man just addressed by the captain. "I have a soft spot in my heart for Americans, as you know, since my only son honored himself by marrying a daughter of Virginia—a land of brave men, mes-sieurs, and fair women. Helas!"

"Monsieur le Marquis," quickly answered Grafton, who had not spent some years of his life at court for nothing, "I thank you for your hospitality and I congratulate you upon the source from which it flows. I accept it gladly—roses and thorns as well."

"Monsieur, you honor me by your acceptance. As to the rose, Monsieur de Kersaint speaks with the romantic license of Brittany. 'Tis but a child,
monsieur, my little grand-daughter.
I am the thorns—a dull old set, surely," added the old man, smiling rather grimly.

"Faith, de Chabot, he who would fain pluck your rose will find you sharp enough, I'll warrant. Morbieu,
you haven't forgot that parry and return you taught me when I was a boy and you a young soldier. Ah, messieurs, if any of you seek speedy gentle death you may easily find it before the marquis' point—"

"Gentlemen," smiled the old man,
"there is no thought of death, but the tale of a little girl. Monsieur Grafton—"

"There are roses in England and America, Monsieur le Marquis—ay, and thorns, too. And no true man was ever deterred from wearing one for fear of the other. But, mistake me not, I'll not seek to pluck your Breton
flower," replied the American, entering into the spirit of the jest. "I shall be your prisoner and—"

"Say my guest, monsieur. But enough," said the old marquis, frowning slightly. "As to the rose, we have carried the plesantry too far already,
messieurs. Let us have no more of it.
Monsieur Grafton, direct your private baggage to be brought to the ship
here; we will leave for my chateau on our arrival this evening."

"Monsieur de Kersaint," said Grafton, "will you add to the obligations under which you have laid
me, by giving orders that my poor
men, the wounded, I mean, are to be well cared for, and then have my private baggage sent off to La Rochelle?

My steward, who is aboard the Boxer,
will attend to it."

"Your men shall be attended to as if they belonged to me," responded the French captain, graciously, "and your private belongings secured. Meanwhile, will you step into my cabin
that we may discuss further our common interests and friendships? Monsieur St. Laurent," he added, turning to his executive officer, who held the rank of capitaine de frigate, "will you throw a prize crew on the doughty
little Boxer—a hard hitter, indeed—
and bid her follow us into Brest under a jury-rig when she can. On second thought, monsieur, lie by her for a few hours until she is fit to go ahead. We would better convoy her in. I should not like to lose her for all she is but a small prize."

CHAPTER IV.

THE GARDEN AND THE ROSE.

THE Chateau de Josselin, a place not unknown to history, lay hard by the seashore a few miles from the town of Brest toward which it turned its landward side. It was a building of great antiquity and had been in the possession of the family of de Rohan from feudal times. One face looked seaward over the wild crags, where the stormy waves of the Bay of Biscay broke in ceaseless onslaught, beating themselves into the white foam of sea agony upon the stern shores.

At the foot of the steep or principal tower, which was built upon the sheer edge of a precipitous headland, there was a deep indentation in the cliffs,
which, if one possessed sufficient skill
and knowledge to thread the narrow passage twisting between the roaring breakers, afforded a safe harborage for boats and small coasting vessels. It had been long unused, of course, owing to the spacious harbor of Brest close at hand, but in old days it had been a favored haven of the adventurous lords of Rohan—and sometimes
of their enemies as well.

Landward the main chateau overlooked a singularly pleasant garden
filled with ancient fruit and shade
trees, the whole inclosed by a high wall from which, and better still from
the high tower, a full view of Brest,
its fortifications, its naval station, its
harbor and its shipping could be obtained. It was to this castle that Philip Grafton was conducted upon the evening of the arrival of Le Thesee in the harbor.

The Marquis de Chabot-Rohan, or,
to give him his familiar title, de Chabot, the heir and successor to the dignities of the de Rohans in those parts,
and consequently the master of rich
and extensive possessions, kept up a princely estate in the old chateau, and it pleased him still to perpetuate the ancient usages and customs of his house so far as he could. The castle itself seemed to be maintained as a mediaeval fortress might have been.
The ditch surrounding it on the landward side, instead of being dry and grass-grown, as was the custom, was kept well filled with water; the drawbridge—the sole means of crossing the moat—was raised and lowered at appointed hours; and close watch and ward were kept by the feudal retainers of the house at the gateway and on the walls. To seaward the walls were so high and so strong that the castle, placed on the very edge of the beetling cliffs, was believed to be impregnable.

Fatal Oversight.

"Young Watkins and his bride have already quarrelled," remarked the society reporter, "although they have only been married two weeks."

"What's the trouble?" asked the sporting editor.

"It seems," explained the pencil
shaver, "that the wedding presents
were at the bottom of it. He wanted to take two or three of them to his office, and she objected."

"Serves 'em right," growled the sporting editor. "They should have signed an agreement as to the division of the gate receipts before the match was pulled off."—Chicago Daily News.

Significant Comparison.

Leonard Bacon, who was one of the best-known theologians in New England a quarter of a century ago, was attending a conference in one of the New England cities, and some assertions he made in his address were vehemently objected to by a member of the opposition. "Why," he expostulated, "I never heard of such a thing
in all my life!" "Mr. Moderator," rejoined Bacon, calmly, "I cannot allow my opponent's ignorance, however
vast, to offset my knowledge, however small."

Not to Be Greedy.

A teacher in a private class in a West Philadelphia school was explaining the petition in the Lord's Prayer:
"We ask for our daily bread," she said,
"to teach us that we are not to be greedy, but only prudent in providing for our wants, and that we are to have great confidence in the providence of God." After she was through she asked one boy why he did not say,
"Give us this month our bread." To her astonishment he quickly replied:
"Because it would get stale and moldy."

Court Mourning Dogs.

Fifty years ago the British minister at Dresden, Mr. Forbes, had three little dogs of the Pomeranian breed, one black, one gray and one white. When the court was in mourning he went out with dog No. 1, when it was in half-mourning with dog No. 2 and when all
was going well with dog No. 3.

Foil of Peeling.

On Sunday morning the bishop of Southwell, England, began his sermon
with these words: "I feel a feeling
which I feel you will feel."

GROCERY MAN AND COOK.

Exchange Left-Handed Compliments
and Come Out About Even.

"Better let me bring you a nice eggplant this mornin'," said the grocery man to the pretty cook, according to the Chicago Daily News. "Then you can make your own eggs, Evelina. What do you do with 'em all?"

"Batter cakes, sweet cakes, custards
an' omelettes mostly," replied the cook.

"Don't you ever make eggnog?"
"I don't know what it is," declared the cook. "I've heard tell of it, but I couldn't say whether it was baked or fried."

"It ain't neither," said the grocery
man. "It's billed. If you go to fry a eg-nog you spoil it. I'd sooner eat it raw.
Where was you Thursday night?"

"Stayed in an' sewed buttonholes on my dishcloths," said the pretty cook.

"What was that for?"

"To make 'em look pretty—same reason you've got your mustach curled. I think a man looks well curlin' up his mustach with curlin' tongs—like a girl."

"I never seen a girl curl her mustach
myself," said the grocery man. "I wasn't to blame for this, though. It was the barber. He got me tied in the chair
so's I couldn't move an' gagged me so's
I couldn't holler an' then got out his hot irons an' done the job. I didn't want him to do it."

"I s'pose not," said the pretty cook.

"Sure thing I didn't. I knowed I was beautiful the way I was. My natural looks make me enough trouble with the girls."

"I don't think they ought to blame you
for 'em," said the cook. "You can't help your face. I had an uncle once that looked something like you—not quite as bad, maybe—but he was sensitive about
it all the same, which you ain't."

"He ought to have had his face amputated if it was as bad as that," observed
the grocery man. "Or he might have gone to one of these face foundries an'
had it recast. I know a feller once they called Nosey, an' he saved his money an'
went to a professor an' got his beak
trimmed down so he didn't hardly have enough left to smell fried onions. Then they got to callin' him Pug, an' he went back to the professor an' wanted to know
if he had any of the old material left to put back agin. The professor done
the best he could an' the job looked all right, but Nosey died of heart failure
less'n a month after that. He was scared to death for fear somethin' would make him sneeze."

"You'd better see one o' them professors," observed the pretty cook.

"Why would I?" asked the grocery
man. "My nose is all right as far as it goes an' it goes as far as I want to fol-
ler it."

"Your nose may be all right."

"I guess it is," said the grocery man, indignantly. "How about my hair?"

"I don't like red myself," said the cook, "but the color's good enough for them as likes it. It's your lip I object to."

Disenchanted Don.

A novel illustration of the saying:
"Listeners never hear any good of themselves," comes from the London Tatler.
An Oxford don, more highly esteemed
for intellectual activity than modesty,
was asked to speak into a phonograph.
A little later the machine was turned on again, and he was requested to listen to his own voice. He listened in silence, then turned to the company. "It is very strange!" he said, in a tone of mingled surprise and resentment. "I can't understand it, but through this machine I am made to speak in a peculiarly bumptious and affected manner!"

Why He Was Skeptical.

genuineness of Green's conversion?

anything about what a shameless wretch
and miserable sinner he used to be.—

GIRL AND WOMAN

CARE NEEDED AT THE CHANGE
FROM ONE TO THE OTHER.

Many a Life Spent in Suffering Because Troubles Were Allowed to Develop
At This Time.

Every mother of a growing girl should remember that there will come a time
when her daughter will be a girl no longer but will share with her the blessings of womanhood. Unless nourishment keeps pace with growth the foundations of a life of suffering are laid at that time. Mrs. John MacKinney, of
No. 478 Thirteenth street, Detroit, Mich.,
writes a timely word. She says:

"I did not get proper care at the first critical time in my life and for seventeen years I suffered as a result. I had dizzy spells, felt a constant fear that something dreadful was about to happen
and was afraid to go out alone. My breathing was very short and I had palpitation of the heart so badly that I could not go up stairs nor walk even moderately fast

BOTH 'PHONES, - - - - - 124.

[Entered at the Paris, Ky., postoffice as Second-class Mail Matter.]

A VOTE for E. P. CLARKE is a vote for a DEMOCRAT who will not appoint Republican Deputies to assist him. A vote for Harvey Hibler is a vote for a man who, when in office, DID appoint TWO REPUBLICAN deputies to assist him. What assurance have we that he will not do so again if elected.

WHEN you go to the polls on Tuesday stamp in the square after E. P. CLARKE's name and you will have voted for a DEMOCRAT, a brave old Confederate soldier, an honest old man who only asks for one term as Sheriff, and will never ask for another office, never employ Republican Deputies to assist in filling an office given him by the Democrats.

Many Changes Expected.

Many changes are expected in the ranks of Kentucky Federal office holders when President Roosevelt's second term begins. It is understood from good authority that all of the eight-year men will have to step aside and let other good Republicans have a little slice of the pie. Among those named to go is Internal Revenue Collector Sam J. Roberts, of Lexington. John W. Yerkes, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, is said to want a change to the Cabinet or an important foreign appointment. There is talk of giving former Governor W. O. Bradley a good berth.

Good Football Game.

An exciting and very interesting football game was played between Lexington and Paris, Saturday, at Bacon's Park. The score was 0 to 0. This is the second game between these teams and the score each time has been 0 to 0. Captain of Paris, Roger Thompson; Captain of Lexington, Leslie Guyn. The boys ages are from 14 to 16 years and both teams put up a first-class game.

Watterson Takes Trip Abroad.

Henry Watterson wrote his last editorial Friday for some time to come. He left Louisville, and after a day's stay in Washington, he will proceed to New York, where, joined by his family, he will sail for Liverpool next Wednesday on the White Star liner Oceanic, and does not know when he will return.

Just Think of It.

The turkey crop of the United States finds its first important market Thanksgiving week, when, according to a reliable estimate, about 6,000,000 of the birds are sold. It is raised in small lots all over the country, each farmer contributing a few. This crop of 6,000,000 Thanksgiving turkeys, if all of them were marching in single file, would stretch from Boston to San Francisco and as far as Denver on the return journey.

Barn Burned.

The barn on the farm of Mrs. Mary Whitsitt, near Elizabeth, burned to the ground one night last week. Several tons of hay and oats, two wagons loaded with corn, gear and all kinds of farm implements were also burned. The cause of the fire is not known.

MORE FACTS AND FIGURES.

We go to press with this issue of the paper one day ahead of time because we do not want to be placed in the position the Paris Democrat of Saturday put us, that is in being "entire wrong" in regard to the discrepancy in the vote of last Tuesday from the registration, and not have an opportunity to reply before the primary is held. In the first place, we want our readers to understand that the editor of this paper, Swift Champ, is the author of the editorials that have appeared herein and that will appear in regard to this primary. Can the editor of the Democrat say so much for the editorials that he has published on the subject? It has been generally understood that the articles that have appeared in the Democrat were written by Mr. James O'Brien, and we do not believe he will deny it. Mr. O'Brien, it seems to us, ought to be satisfied with running the political machine in the city, without trying to widen his field to the whole county, but politicians as a rule are greedy, and he is no exception to the rule. He first attacked the County Committee and inadvertently brought into his article several of the candidates whom he opposed; then he goes after Combs' scalp, (he probably forgets his old friend Hedger, who removed and named Committeemen at his bidding—Judge Jewell was right, "it's hell,") and now attempts to figure us out as "entire wrong." The figures that are on file as records in the County Clerk's office are what we go by and where we get our information. We will not go into lengthy detail, but let's take his "banner precinct" only to demonstrate that we are right in our contention as to the large number of white and negro Republicans registered by the city machine to vote for Hibler. In Paris precinct 2 there were 247 persons who registered as Democrats, and on Tuesday, the Presidential election, there were but 190 Democratic votes cast. Is it possible that 57 Democrats failed to vote in No. 2 on Tuesday last? Then again in said precinct the Republicans registered 55 only, and on election day 74 Republicans voted. Now does it not look rather bad on the face of the returns by just taking his "banner precinct" to demonstrate our contention.

Leaving all this aside the Democrats have gained in the city, and we are ready and do tip our hats to the workers who brought this about, but at the same time give us a "fair primary" as you have stated you wanted and rule out these negroes and white Republicans who have been registered so you can vote them in the Democratic primary.

If you are in earnest about a "fair primary" these Republicans will not be allowed to participate in the primary, as the call by Chairman Morrow is plain and to the point and reads, "Said election will be held under the Primary Election Law now in force, and all KNOWN Democrats, who are legal voters on the day of said Primary, are invited to participate."

THE CLARKE TICKET FOR SHERIFF.

MANY REASONS WHY DEMOCRATS SHOULD SUPPORT THIS TICKET.

THE NEWS up to this time has never taken sides in a Democratic primary election, but taking into consideration the candidates that are before the people for the office of Sheriff and the scheming that is going on to defeat such men, it now declares for the Clarke ticket. We desire to give our reasons in the first place for being for Mr. Clarke for Sheriff.

Mr. E. P. Clarke, the head of the ticket, is a Democrat through and through; he is a brave ex-Confederate soldier; he has never held office except the four years he is now serving as Deputy Sheriff; it has generally been understood in this county that the Deputy Sheriff should head the ticket for Sheriff the following election, and Mr. Clarke says, if elected this time he will never run for another office.

Mr. Al. Thompson, who is on the ticket with Mr. Clarke, is a time-tried worker in the Democratic party, and the only office he has ever held was Representative in the Lower House of the Legislature for two sixty-day terms. He made an enviable reputation in that body for fighting for the common people.

Mr. Clarke's other deputy is Mr. W. F. Talbott, a gentleman who has never held office. He is a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat and has been fighting for the cause all of his life.

Now we will look at the opposition tickets and ask the Democrats of this county if for true merit the above named gentlemen are not entitled to the support of the Democracy of Bourbon over the ticket running against them.

Mr. Hibler is the head of the opposing ticket. He has held office for about ten years—city assessor, city collector and county assessor. But the feature about Mr. Hibler is that his record as a Democrat is not good. When City Assessor he appointed two of the bitterest Republicans in the county as his deputies—Mr. Perry Hutchcraft and Mr. Bob Rose. Mr. Hutchcraft is the man who swore out the warrant several years ago against Mr. Al Thompson in the Federal Court when Mr. Thompson was working in the interest of the Democratic party. Mr. Rose is the man who accompanied the United States Marshal when he went to arrest Mr. Thompson. These two men were Mr. Hibler's deputies when he was holding an office he was elected to by the Democrats, and we hold that he is not the man for the High Sheriff of Bourbon county from a Democratic standpoint. Think of it, two deputies of a Democratic official trying their utmost to send as good a Democrat as ever breathed to the penitentiary for doing work for his party. Who might he not appoint as Sheriff if he wanted a few more deputies for some special cause, or in case of death or resignation of one or both of his regular deputies? If Mr. Hibler appointed such a deputy as Mr. Hutchcraft or Mr. Rose, would the Democrats who propose to vote for Mr. Hibler have any grounds to object? Could not Mr. Hibler close their mouths against any protest by reminding those Democrats that they knew his record about appointing Republican deputies and by their votes at the primary sanctioned and approved of all that he had done.

Mr. Burke, on the ticket with Mr. Hibler, has held the office of Deputy Sheriff for eight years, and if he is not willing to head a Sheriff's ticket by this time he should step aside. He surely does not want a life-time's job as Deputy Sheriff. Has he been a noted worker at all elections for the cause of Democracy?

Mr. Brutus Clay is the other deputy with Mr. Hibler. He was deputy sheriff for four years. Is he known as such a worker in the party that entitles him to any recognition, if so, we have never heard of it.

Let any good Democrat size up these two tickets, and it looks to us he will cast his vote and do all in his power for the success of the Clarke ticket.

If we had no other reason, we would support the Clarke ticket because an effort has been made in Paris to defeat the ticket with a lot of negroes registered as Democrats. As Democrats we want to record our protest against this step. The largest registration of Democratic votes in Paris heretofore was less than 750. The recent registration now on file in County Clerk's office shows a large number of negroes in Paris registered as Democrats and the total, including these negroes, registered as Democrats is 912. Yet last Tuesday the Democratic vote in Paris on Presidential election demonstrates that there is only about 775 Democratic votes in Paris. The negroes registered as Democrats all voted for Roosevelt and when asked the question do not hesitate to say so. Yet these negroes are to be voted in the primary against Mr. Clarke. Are Democrats willing for a primary to be controlled in this way. Once commenced, where will it end? Next time, all the negroes in Paris may be shrewd enough to register as Democrats. It does not keep them from voting the Republican ticket and it enables them to take part in our primaries and helps business by putting money into circulation among the colored population. Every Democrat should put his foot down hard on this movement to thwart the will of the Democracy of Bourbon.

A Continual Strain.

Many men and women are constantly subjected to what they commonly term "a continual strain" because of some financial or family trouble. It wears and distresses them both mentally and physically, affecting their nerves badly and bringing on liver and kidney ailments, with the attendant evils of constipation, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, low vitality and despondency. They cannot, as a rule, get rid of this "continual strain," but they can remedy its health destroying effects by taking frequent doses of Green's August Flower. It tones up the liver, stimulates the kidneys, insures healthy bodily functions, gives vim and spirit to one's whole being, and eventually dispels the physical or mental distress caused by that "continual strain." Trial bottle of August Flower, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists.—W. T. Brooks.

Healthy Mothers.

Mothers should always keep in good bodily health. They owe it to their children. Yet it is no unusual sight to see a mother, with babe in arms, coughing violently and exhibiting all the symptoms of a consumptive tendency. And why should this dangerous condition exist, dangerous alike to mother and child, when Dr. Boschee's German Syrup would put a stop to it at once? No mother should be without this old and tried remedy in the house—for its timely use will promptly cure any lung, throat or bronchial trouble in herself or her children. The worst cough or cold can be speedily cured by German Syrup; so can hoarseness and congestion of the bronchial tubes. It makes expectoration easy, and gives instant relief and refreshing rest to the cough-ridden consumptive. New trial bottles, 25c; large size 75c. At all druggists.—W. T. Brooks.

LATER RETURNS.

Missouri Goes Republican and a Close Vote in Maryland.

Baltimore, Nov. 11.—The official returns here up to a late hour Thursday night indicate that the vote for the presidential candidates last Tuesday was very close, possibly 100 on either side. It is probable that Secretary of State Oswald Tilghman will be called upon to decide which of the electors will be entitled to cast their votes in Washington.

The board of canvassers in Baltimore city and in the 23 counties of the state met at noon Thursday. In Baltimore city the votes cast in the Third congressional district were counted but the totals were not made public. While Congressman Frank Wachter was admittedly re-elected, the vote on the presidential ticket is left in doubt.

From the official returns thus far received the indications are that the republicans have elected seven and the democrats one of the electors of the state.

Returns received from 11 counties of the state give the republican electors a plurality of 174. Until the canvassing boards of the several counties and of the city of Baltimore shall have examined and counted the ballots, it will be impossible to say which of the presidential candidates will receive Maryland's electoral vote.

There is no change in the congressional situation, the democrats and republicans each have elected three members of the next house of representatives.

St. Louis, Nov. 11.—With complete returns from 96 counties out of 114 at hand the entire republican ticket with the exception of governor has been elected by pluralities of 350 to 15,000. With all but a few scattered precincts accounted for, the 16th congressional district has gone republican by a plurality of 102. This result will, in all probability, be only slightly changed either one way or the other by the returns from the additional precincts.

The plurality of President Roosevelt is variously estimated from 10,000 to 18,000 and his victory in the state has been conceded by Chairman Evans, of the democratic state committee, who also concedes the election of the republican ticket with the exception of governor, lieutenant governor and railroad commissioner. The only question remaining to be definitely settled in connection with the election of governor is the extent of the plurality of Joseph W. Folk, dem., whose plurality in 96 counties is 37,865.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Nov. 11.—The official returns for West Virginia are not yet in, but from the returns received Roosevelt's plurality in the state is placed at from 25,000 to 30,000. The republican state committee claims the election of W. M. O. Dawson, rep., for governor, by a plurality of over 9,000. The democratic state committee concedes his election by about 5,000. The legislature will be overwhelmingly republican in both branches, the democrats only having six out of 30 senators. The democratic state headquarters were closed Thursday night.

Philadelphia, Nov. 11.—Complete but unofficial figures received from every county in the state with the exception of Allegheny, in which Pittsburgh is situated, but from where a close estimate has been obtained, show that President Roosevelt's plurality in Pennsylvania has reached 494,523, probably the largest plurality ever given a presidential candidate by any state in the political history of the country.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 11.—Late Thursday the fusion leaders conceded the re-election of Gov. Mickey by a plurality which will probably reach from 7,000 to 10,000. The late returns increase the gains in a material way and left no doubt of his receiving a substantial plurality.

Roosevelt and Fairbanks electors carry the state by over 50,000 plurality.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 11.—The latest estimate of republican pluralities in Wisconsin give Roosevelt and Fairbanks between 125,000 and 140,000 and LaFollette between 50,000 and 60,000. It will be several days before the full returns are in.

ELECTION IN PORTO RICO.

All Leading Cities Except One Were Carried By the Unionists.

San Juan, P. R., Nov. 11.—Complete returns of the elections of last Tuesday show that the unionists polled majorities in five of the seven districts. The house of delegates will consist of 25 unionists and ten republicans. All the leading cities of the island except San Juan were carried by the unionists. Gov. Winthrop is receiving congratulations on the peaceable and fair manner in which the elections passed off.

Gov. Peabody, of Colorado, Defeated.

Denver, Col., Nov. 11.—Gov. James H. Peabody, republican, himself concedes his defeat. Alva Adams' majority over Peabody in the city and county of Denver is 5,071, and in the entire state about 10,500. The reported republican majority for Peabody in the state outside of Denver is not borne out by the returns which are still incomplete. Peabody was beaten by 750 plurality in his home (Fremont) county, though it was carried by Roosevelt by 200.

Will Return to the Law Business.

New York, Nov. 11.—Judge Parker came to this city from Esopus Thursday. He is quoted as saying to friends on the train: "Of course I am going to return to the law business. I have several engagements under consideration."

ANOTHER LIFE SAVED.

Mrs. G. W. Fooks, of Salisbury, Md., wife of G. W. Fooks, Sheriff of Wicomico County, says: "I suffered with kidney complaint for eight years. It came on me gradually. I felt tired and weak, was short of breath and was troubled with bloating after eating, and my limbs were badly swollen. One doctor told me it would finally turn to Bright's disease. I was laid up at one time for three weeks. I had not taken Doan's Kidney Pills more than three days when the distressing aching across my back disappeared, and I was soon entirely cured."

THOUGHT HE HAD NO MONEY

But Had Five Dollars in His Pocket After Going Broke Playing Poker.

"I was brought up to use a good line of talk," says a young man who lives out near the Catholic university, relates a New York exchange. "I've been married now six months, and the only time my wife has ever heard a curse word from my lips was last Sunday morning. I went to a poker party over by the navy yard Saturday night. My wife knew I was going, and just to show her what a harmless little game it was going to be, I gave her most of my money before I left home. It was a very mild game we played, but the grain of the table was against me and by midnight I was broke. I didn't want to make a touch right there, so, as I was young and strong, I concluded I'd stroll downtown and borrow car fare from a newspaper man I knew. It was a nice night for a walk. Well, I frisked into the newspaperman's office and found that he'd gone to Baltimore. I've lived in Washington all my life, but I am not known at any hotel. There was no place where I'd be allowed to stay without baggage except on the C. O. D. basis, so off I set for home, alone in the starry night, with a brand new pair of patent leathers on. I romped under the wire two lengths ahead of the milkman, and went to bed. Along about nine o'clock my wife came in and woke me.

"What's the matter?" I said. "Are they ready to amputate my feet?"

"I just wanted some money for the Sunday papers," said she, picking up my vest.

"You'll have to pawn something," I said. "I'm broke."

"She was poking in my watch pocket."

SLEEP NOT LEGAL EXCUSE.

Judge Refuses to Accept Fatigue as Plea of Engineer Whose Train Was Wrecked.

Judge Swartz, in the Montgomery county court at Norristown, Pa., refused to affirm a point in law submitted by an attorney that when a railroad employee falls asleep from physical weakness, illness or weariness from long hours or steady employment and an accident happens the employee should be acquitted.

The case was that of John F. Fleischutt, of Pottsville, Pa., an engineer on a Pennsylvania freight train. A freight train and a passenger train collided near Pottstown last April and two persons were killed and a dozen injured. The crew of the freight train was held by the coroner for criminal negligence.

Fleischutt was the first to be tried. It was testified by the fireman that the freight train had been ordered to wait on a siding until four trains had passed. He said the crew had been on duty for 22 hours and that while waiting for the trains to pass had fallen asleep. Before the fourth train had passed the men awoke and, thinking that the fourth train had gone by, the freight train was taken from the siding.

Before the case went to the jury Fleischutt's attorney made the point above stated. In refusing to affirm it Judge Swartz held that no man had a right to work on a railroad unless in fine physical condition and if he fell asleep, no matter from what cause, he should discontinue work, even though he should lose his position, rather than jeopardize human life by continuing on duty. Fleischutt was convicted.

TELEPATHY TELLS DEATH.

Mother and Brother Nearly 900 Miles Away, Awakened—At Same Moment Relative Dies.

While neither had previously given a thought to things occult, Thomas Muir and his mother, of Plainfield, N. J., are now converts to the theory of telepathy.

When they went to St. Louis a few days ago all the members of the family at home were in the best of health. Shortly after midnight of their second day at St. Louis Muir awoke with a start, found himself in a nervous and apprehensive state of mind, and was not able to return to sleep.

Referring to the matter at the breakfast table, he was informed that his mother had passed through an experience similar to his. They had awakened at precisely the same moment.

Before they had left the table a telegram was handed to Muir informing him that his brother had fallen from a ladder the day before and that he had died at the very moment when the pair at St. Louis, 825 miles away as the crow flies, had been aroused from sleep by some subtle warning of ill tidings.

Meets Death in Odd Way.

Ona, the 12-year-old son of Carrie Watson, is dead of lockjaw at Corydon, Ind., resulting from a fractured bone of the arm. Several days ago the boy was attempting to ride a calf in a field. The animal was playful and threw him to the ground. He fell on his left arm, the bone of which snapped and, protruding from the flesh, stuck into the ground. He was pinned, unconscious, for several hours, until discovered by accident by a laborer returning home in the evening. Specialists were summoned, but their utmost endeavors were without avail.

WHAT HE GOT THEM WITH

No Ailments in the Crowd, But the Fakir Had Something That Sold Quickly.

"Gentlemen," began the fakir as he arranged numerous bottles on a little table at a downtown street corner and prepared for business, "has anyone in this crowd got a toothache?"

No one answered, relates the Chicago Inter Ocean.

"Has anyone an earache or a headache?"

Not a man had anything to say.

"Very well, then; but are you troubled with insomnia? Are you low spirited, and do you find yourself thinking of suicide?"

The appeal was like the other—in vain. The crowd elbowed each other, but no one advanced.

"Very well, gentlemen; very well. Now, is there anyone here who indulges in intoxicants and wishes to conceal the fact from the women folks? If so, I guarantee that one drop of this marvelous preparation placed on the tongue will instantly remove the odor of any—"

There was a mad rush from all directions, and for the next five minutes he gave change and passed out the bottles with both hands.

RIGHT ON HER DIGNITY.

American Heiress Had Inherited Just as Easy Money as Any-body.

"I understand," said the dignified English matron, "that your father made his money in—in trade."

"What do you mean?" asked the American heiress.

"That he amassed his wealth by buying and selling commodities that the common people needed."

"He did nothing of the sort!" retorted the angry heiress, relates Judge. "I want you to understand that papa did not work a lick for a cent of his. He made it every bit by skinning people with watered stocks. I guess that's just as easy money as the kind that you inherit, isn't it?"

An Honest Opinion.

Mineral, Idaho, Nov. 14th (Special).—That a sure cure has been discovered for those sciatic pains that make so many lives miserable, is the firm opinion of Mr. D. S. Colson, a well-known resident of this place, and he does not hesitate to say that cure is Dodd's Kidney Pills. The reason Mr. Colson is so firm in his opinion is that he had those terrible pains and is cured. Speaking of the matter he says:

"I am only too happy to say Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me lots of good. I had awful pains in my hip so I could hardly walk. Dodd's Kidney Pills stopped it entirely. I think they are a grand medicine."

All Sciatic and Rheumatic pains are caused by Uric Acid in the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills make healthy kidneys and healthy kidneys strain all the Uric Acid out of the blood. With the cause removed there can be no Rheumatism or Sciatica.

"Hope," said Uncle Eben, "is a great thing. But it don't justify a man in doin' nuffin' an' settin' aroun' all his life waitin' for 'Santy Claus.'—Washington Star.

Some people shed advice like a cotton-wood tree sheds lint—and with about the same results.

Mrs. L. C. Glover, Vice Pres. Milwaukee, Wis., Business Woman's Association, is another one of the million women who have been restored to health by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: I was married for several years and no children blessed my home. The doctor said I had a complication of female troubles and I could not have any children unless I could be cured. He tried to cure me, but after experimenting for several months, my husband became disgusted, and one night when we noticed a testimonial of a woman who had been cured of similar trouble through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, he went out and bought a bottle for me. I used your medicine for three and one half months, improving steadily in health, and in twenty-two months a child came. I cannot fully express the joy and thankfulness that is in my heart. Our home is a different place now, as we have something to live for, and all the credit is due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Yours very sincerely, Mrs. L. C. GLOVER, 614 Grove St., Milwaukee, Wis." Vice President, Milwaukee Business Woman's Ass'n.

Women should not fail to profit by the experience of these two women; just as surely as they were cured of the troubles enumerated in their letters, just so certainly will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure others who suffer from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability, and nervous prostration; remember that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing women, and don't allow any druggist to sell you anything else in its place.

An Indiana Lady Tells of a Wonderful Cure:—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: It is a pleasure for me to write and tell what your wonderful medicine has done for me. I was sick for three years with change of life, and my physician thought a cancerous condition of the womb. During these three years I suffered untold agony."

"I cannot find words in which to express my best feelings. I did not expect to ever see another well day. I read some of the testimonials recommending your medicine and decided to write to you and give your treatment a trial."

"Before I had taken half a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to sleep. I have taken now six bottles and am so well I can do all kinds of work."—Mrs. LIZZIE HINKLE, Salem, Ind.

If there is anything in your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. She can surely help you, for no person in America can speak from a wider experience in treating female ills. Address is Lynn, Mass.; her advice is free and always helpful.

$5000 FORFEIT If we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of those testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

HERE is the most wonderful Heater the world has ever known.

The reason why the Buck's Hot Blast is the most wonderful heater in the world is because it is so constructed that it turns into fuel and burns the 38 per cent. of gas in soft coal instead of permitting it to escape through the chimney, as other heaters do. In a Buck's Hot Blast 1 1/4 tons of soft coal or slack will produce as much heat as one ton of anthracite or hard coal. So you can easily figure where one of these wonderful heaters will pay for itself in one or two seasons.

There is absolutely no Smoke, no Gas, no Soot, it is all burned up as fuel.

If you will let us demonstrate these claims to you there will be no question about your buying a
